

Potion Vial Dosage Playtest

Depending upon the size of a given container, various doses of a single type of potion can be stored in a single container. For instance, given the appropriate container, three doses of a Cure Light Wounds potion may be stored in one container.

The vials (pictured right) are but a few examples of varying sizes of container. From left to right, the vials may contain one, two, or three doses. No container may hold more than five doses.

Containers may be presented to the Event Staff so they may determine the appropriate amount of doses that a given container may hold.

